As the editor of the Advertiser seems to be in his element when giving publicity to low and vulgar personalities, and as he pursues the cowardly mode of screening himself behind anonymous correspondents as cowardly as himself, we feel like putting a query to him, which we know he is competent to answer; but if he does not choose to do so, we shall not complain. It is this: Suppose the alternative was presented to him, of having to take up his abode in the Insane Asylum, or a cell in Oahu Prison, which would be prefer as a place of residence? Snarlevow.

WHEN Captain Marryatt published his book entitled "Snarleyow, or the Dog Fiend," he startled the literary world by the novelty of the title. But so soon as the reading public had time to read and digest the contents of the book-in which the novelist so clearly described a singularly disgusting our that was at all times engaged in snarling, snapping and biting the heels of a very decent, inoffensive personage-the volume became a forvorite with the public, and ran through several new editions. In the book referred to, the author facetious ly and with wonderful effect, describes a pestiferous class of miserable curs, who The regular annual Public Examinations of the Govern-ment English Day Schools of Honoleiu, will be held as are never happy unless snapping or snarling at somebody. Creatures, with canine natures, who must howl, yelp and whine, or be miserable, and if they venture to bite the object of their rage, it is always done in the cowardly and dastardly manner of the assassin, who steals from behind some safe retreat to take their victims unawares, and then sneak back to their coverts and gloat over the act with the gusto of a demon. The foregoing remarks are prompted from reading the last number of the Advertiser of this city, whose columns were given up to a few snarleyows to disgust the public with their yelping, in several articles purporting to be communications addressed to the editor of that paper. Thus we find that snarleyow is represented in Honolulu. He has been wafted hither to inflict the curse of his presence upon a peaceful ful community. The fact is the tribe is quite numerous in this city, and, although some of them arrived under assumed names because of the bad records left behind them, they still have the effrontery to air their ugly natures, by setting up their yelp, to gratify an innate propensity they cannot curb. Let them howl on. Their noise, which is neither musical nor pleasant to the sense, is the only source of pleasure their canine natures will allow them to enjoy in this life, of which we would not deprive them if we could. Poor brutes! They must follow the bent of their brutal natures! Therefore, let them yelp!

For our own part we are rather amused at the howlings of these creatures, who are so low in the scale of humanity that they sink beneath contempt, and are really not worthy the kick of a well polished boot. They excite our pity as much as our contempt, and if our readers will pardon us for this first, and last, notice of the "Snarleyows of Honolulu," we will dismiss them with the admonition-Back to your kennels, ye dirty dogs!

Report of the Board of Health.

WE have refrained up to this time from saying anything in regard to the Report of the Board of Health, furnished to the Legislative Assembly, at its present session, till we should have time to give that document a careful reading. We regard the able report of the President of the Board of Health as one of great importance to the people, not only of these islands, but all others whose business interests bring them in contact with our people. Doings of the Legislature

On Tuesday a number of petitions were presented and appropriately referred. Mr. A. S. Cleghorn, Chairman of the Committee on Eurollment and Revision, to whom was referred a number of bills, reported them as committed. His Excellency the Minister of the Interior, laid before the Assembly his report, in reply to a resolution requesting information about the Crown lands, defining their boundaries. Also one in reference to the issuing of a royal patent to a Mr. Naaikaure, for 270 acres of land : the report states that after carefully examining the claim, the evidence clicited was insufficient to recimmead the issuing of the patent, both reports were laid on the table. On motion of His Excellency, Minister of Interior, the resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. Mr. Bickerton read the first time An act amending section 513 of the Civil Code; this is the bill exempting fireman from the payment of personal taxes. A resolution providing for the printing of bills after their first eading, was agreed to. His Excellency the Minister of Interior, was on motion of Mr. Castle Jr., requested to inform the Assembly the terms of the lease for the Government press and Hawaiian Gazette. Mr. Kalaikawaha presented a bill, which was read the first time, taxing Life and other Insurance companies. Mr. Bickerton offered the following:

Mr. Malo offered a resolution, requiring the Chief Justice to appear before the Assembly and reply to questions propounded to him by members upon the proper construction of Articles 43 and 47 of the Constitution, which was indefinitely postponed. An act repealing chapter 13 laws of 1876, and re-enacting section 673 of the Civil Code, was passed finally. Highest Medal and Diploma atithe Centennial Exhibition for a Ready Mixed Paint Indicating the highest merit of may of its class either in America or Europe

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT OF THE CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONERS. "It can be applied with great facility and perfect regularity; dries with a rich, glossy surface, and will not chalk or crack off.

It can be applied by aby one, whether a practical painter or not."

Extract from Report of the Committee of the 12th Industrial Exhibition or saw | Mechanics' Institute, Non Francisco, 1877.

" MIXED PAINTS.

"Your Committee has been at considerable pains to come to an equitable decision on the claims of the bree exhibits competing under this head, the awards claimed being for the Bast Ready Mixed Paint."
"The points to be determined come under three beads:
"First-What means, if any, have been used to secure the continued suspension of the pigment in the

SECOND-What are the working qualities, and which would secure a durable and opaque coat, at least THIRD-What are the respective merits of the competing paints as to permanency and durability as an quid, and how far have they been succersful

outside paint?"

The third paint is dropped from competition by the Committee, after testing on the first and second points, and the report continues: "As regards the third point, the Committee took pains to inspect a number of houses where the "Rubber" and the "Averill" had been used, and also produced a large amount of ber of houses where the "Rubber" and the "Averili" had been used, and also procured a large amount of testimony on the subject from various sources.

"The most prominent objection to the ordinary Oil Paint is, that after a certain time, especially if exposed to the weather, it becomes brittle, cracks, and tends to scale off, at the same time becoming more or less 'chalky' on the surface. This is owing partly to an absorption of the oil by the wood, and partly to a true 'weathering out' of the dry oil from the surface, thus leaving the pigment exposed."

Referring to the "Rubber Paint," the report continues: "The testimony goes to show that it is even more liable to peel off than ordinary Paint, or than the Averill Paint. As to its durability, the Committee are of opinion that the short time during which it has been used does not admit of a fair comparison with the Averill Paint.

In the Averill Paint a kind of varnish body is given, apart from the pigment, by the Silicate of Soda, so that even its visible covering power does not fairly represent the sound amount of protective covering given by a cost of it. From testimony collected, the Committee are of opinion that it has proved itself superior to ordinary Oil Paint in the preservation of a fair surface under exposure to the weather, both as regards the tendency to crack and the absence of 'chalkiness.' In view of all the facts, the Committee award to the 'Averill Paint' the Medal for General Excellence as a 'Mixed Paint.'"

MEDAL AND DIPLOMA AWARDED

California State Agricultural Society, 1874--75.

This Paint is prepared in figured form ready for use, requiring no further addition of oil or spirits. It is of pure white, and of any shade or color.

It is composed of Pune Linskum Oil, Statetly Pune White Luan, Pune Zine, and the purest coloring matter procurable for thiting, which by our peculiar process of manufacture are so thoroughly united that they cannot separate. Hence, it will never chalk, crack or peci off; done not run from seams or nail holes; they cannot separate. Hence, it will never chalk, crack or peel off; does not run from seams or nail boles; and for brilliancy of color and beauty of finish it is without a rival.

Water Glass, which is also an ingodient of this Paint, runders wood impenetrable to moisture, hence the Paint is waterproof. Water Glass will not burn, and consequently the Paint will resist the action of the sun and of fire better than any other known Paint.

It possesses classicity in the highest degree, accommodating itself perfectly to the expansion and contraction of the material to which it is applied, so that it does not crack or separate, as is commonly the case in ordinary Paints. It will break only when the material to which it is applied to broken. It is entirely impenetrable to weather; dries with a peculiar riob, glosey finish, adhering firmly to any surface to which it is applied; hardening with age; retaining perfectly its color, and can be separated from the surface to which it is applied only by application of the most powerful chemicals aided by mechanical

In the preparation of the AVERILL MIXED PAINT, the ingredients are thoroughly united by processes In the preparation of the Avricia Law MARIO PARK, the ingressions are unroughly united by processes both mechanical and chemical; and therefore no one ingredient can be acted upon separately by the elements; consequently the Paint is uneffected by weather, and its durability is unequalled by say ather known Paint, as an experience of over Twenty Years in the Atlantic and Western States, and of over Nine Years on the Pecific Stope, has fully demonstrated.

It will last twice as long as the best White Lead, prepared in the usual way, while the cost of painting

It will had been as long as one case with the Averill and other paints as commonly used is this; White Lead and Oil, when mixed in the ordinary way for application, will soon separate, the oil coming to the top and the lead settling to the bottom, and to warrant a uniform thickness it has to be stirred every few minutes while it is being to the bottom, and to warrant a uniform thickness it has to be stirred every few minutes while it is being need. It tendency to separate is so great that when it is applied to wood the sil readily leaves the lead and soaks into the wood, leaving the lead on the sutside to be acted on alone by the elements, and in this dry and hot climate, what little oily matter has been left in the lead is soon barned out and destroyed, leaving the lead dry and brittle, ready to chalk off by ristion or be thrown off by rain; while in the Averill Paint the oil is forced to perform the office for which it was intended, by noing so thoroughly combined with the other ingredients that if cannot separate, and when applied to wood or other material it forms a coating and thought and improved table off our be affected by rain. so tough and impenetrable that it cannot chalk siff or be affected by rain.

As a House Paint

It gives the richest, most agreeable, uniform and permanent Tiots, and it has the additional advantage that whenever it becomes solled it can be washed and even sorubbed with soap and water. It is equally as good for inside as suitside work, ever old work as well as now; in fact, where any paint can be used it will be found superior to any other. Houses painted with it are distinguishable for years by their superior brilliancy of finish over those painted with any other paint. Our Wagon and Machinery Paints

From the finest vermilion to the more common and cheaper colours, are specially fine, and being ready mixed, meet the wants of the public completely. Every person owning a wagon, or any kind of machiners, should keep a can of it on hand, and occasionally give them a fresh coat of paint. It would take but a few hours' time, while it would add to the durability and appearance of the articles a hundred times its cost.

Our Metallic Roof Paint,

Made of Oxide of Iron, comes the nearest to being notually Fire-proof, and is certainly the best and cheapent Roof Paint ever made. For Tin Roofs it has no equal, it being entirely impervious to air or moisture—rust or correcton is impossable; while its use on Shingle Roofs not only fills up the cracks and prevents the shingles from warping, so as to preserve the roof and prevent its leaking, but its fire-proof qualities are such that a roof thoroughly coated with it is nearly as safe from fire as if made of iron. This feature, together with its cheapness, makes it most desirable for warehouses, bridges, mining buildings, and for all purposes where durability and fire-proof qualities are desired.

The Averill Paint is put up in $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, 1 and 5 gallon caus, and in barrels, and sold by the gallon.

The following is a specimen of the thousands of testimonials sent us by those who have used the Averill Mixed Paint, and the testimony of such names admits of no question as to its superior merits: Read and be Convinced.

I also painted my house two years ago with the same article, and it stands the weather beautifully, without chalking or fading. It is the most convenient and the best paint I have ever used. ost paint I have ever used.

DAVID N. UTTER.
U. S. Navy Yard, Mare Island, Cal., September 17, 1877.—Gentlemen: In reply to your inquiry as to my pinion of the respective merits of the "Averill Mixed Paint" and the "Rubber Paint." I would state that have given them, as I consider, a fair test. In June, 1875, I received from the Civil Engineer's Office at of the Averill Mixed Paint and some of the Rubber Paint. I put both paints side by side (three coats each) on some outside stucco work, and on examination on September 15, 1877. I find the Rubber Paint has lost its gloss and rubs off, while the Averill Mixed Paint retains its gloss and is a great deal harder, and my spinous is decidedly in favour of the Averil Paint retains its gloss and is a great deal harder, and my

We have had opportunities of comparing it with other qualities of paint on our premises, and we are decided in pronouncing in favor of the Averill Paint.—Yours, with much respect,
